Uniting Global Voices for Sustainable Transformation

International Sustainable
Rice Forum
2025

The International Sustainable Rice Forum (ISRF) 2025 comes at a pivotal moment when sustainable rice has become an integral part of global dialogues on food security, climate action, and agricultural transformation. Over the years, private sector actors, governments, researchers, CSOs, and farmers have increasingly recognised that building an enabling environment for sustainable rice requires a shared platform, one that brings together diverse stakeholders as part of a unified system to advance supportive policies, drive innovation and research, and mobilise resources effectively.

The Forum presents a strategic platform to exchange knowledge, strengthen collaboration, explore opportunities, and align global and regional priorities on sustainable rice development. The Forum will convene leading voices from across the value chain to address challenges and opportunities that shape the future of rice in a sustainable food system.

Multi stakeholder collaboration for sustainable future

The ISRF 2025 is organised by Preferred by Nature together with the global Sustainable Rice Platform (SRP), Rikolto, and the International Rice Research Institute (IRRI), global leaders driving sustainable climate-smart rice production through standards, farmers empowerment and cutting-edge research.

It is part of the Low Carbon Rice project, funded by the European Union through its SWITCH-Asia Grants Programme and implemented by Preferred by Nature in collaboration with Koalisi Rakyat untuk Keadaulatan Pangan (KRKP) and Indonesia Rice Millers and Traders Association (PERPADI).
